The Property

1212 Quarrier Street, is located in the rapidly improving East End near Downtown Charleston and West Virginia’s Capitol. This two and one-half story historic structure was built near the turn of the 20th Century as a grand single-family home. More recently, it has served as apartments. The building faces Quarrier Street near its intersection with Brooks Street and is adjacent to the successful Arlington Court residences. The building is within walking distance of a number of amenities and conveniences.

Both floors of the building currently contain vacant apartments. The floors could be easily designed to house quality office space or maintain the residential units. Some on-site parking can be created. The large later addition has been demolished.

This historic property is eligible for Federal & State Historic Tax Credits.
The building is unoccupied and free and clear with no liens or assessment.

The Charleston Urban Renewal Authority (CURA) now owns the property and has made basic improvements, including:

- Removal of the later addition to the rear;
- Removal of asbestos-containing materials;
